

Viola Rouhani, AIA

Viola Rouhani joined Stelle Architects in May of 2004.

Before moving to the east end of Long Island, Viola practiced architecture in New York City where she worked with Kapell and Kostow Architects, NBBJ, and Michael Fieldman Architect. Prior to this, she was with Levy Design Partners in San Francisco. Viola's experience includes healthcare, historic preservation, theater, and residential design. Past projects include renovation of the New York Shakespeare Festival's Delacorte Theater in Central Park, MTV editing facilities, and Mass General Hospital's Yawkey Center for Outpatient Care in Boston.

Viola has a strong background in both design and project coordination. Her experience working on public and institutional buildings, as well as residential projects has given her an insight to the complexities involved in creating user friendly environments, from coordinating building systems to materials, details, and finishes. Viola is also an advocate of green and sustainable design.

Viola's current projects include a number of residences located on the east end of Long Island ranging in size from 2,000 to 7,000 square feet.

Education:

B.A in Architecture, Minor in City and Regional Planning,
University of California Berkeley, 1992

Institute of Landscape and Urban Development, Urbino Italy 1992

M.Arch University of California, Berkeley, 1995